...sorry for yelling

Presenting See Agency's 'Never Have We Ever List' of 19 Things We Will Never (ever) Do

1. Make crazy demands.
2. Support arrogant riders.
3. Represent egotistical, high-maintenance & 'difficult to work with' talent.
4. Lack humility.
5. Align with a self-promoting huckster.
6. Endorse canned presentations when customization is needed.
7. Fail to do at least a little research on the industry.
8. Be boring.
9. Cancel because of a better gig.
10. Induce on-site heart attacks.
11. Be inflexible about recording the speech or sharing content.
12. Not submit materials by the agreed-upon date.
13. Tolerate general lack of responsiveness to requests.
14. Present last-minute requests or costly add-on demands.
15. Employ pushy sales calls and stalking tactics.
16. Be difficult to do business with.
17. Generate pain-in-the butt contracts.
18. Book "run out the door immediately after presenting" flights.
19. Act like the hiring organization works for the speaker, instead of the other way around.
